

CCA Unit. 1.2.2: Evolution of Computer :-

(Development in succession)

- The Evolution of digital Computing is often divided into generations.
- Each generations is characterized by dramatic improvements over the previous generations in the technology used to build computer in terms of the internal organization of computer and programming language.